3. Program Explanation Narrative

Background and Objectives

This educational public event and lifelong learning program is implemented by the Faculty of Dakwah and Communication Sciences (FDIKOM) UIN Syarif Hidayatullah Jakarta to address the need for expanded open educational access for the academic community and the general public. Its main objectives are to strengthen the lifelong learning ecosystem, disseminate knowledge in social sciences, da'wah, tourism, and religious fields, as well as expand collaborative networks through national and international academic activities.

Program Implementation

The program is implemented through a series of scholarly activities such as studium generale, international guest lectures, focus group discussions (FGD), educational movie screenings, professional certifications, community service, and international conferences held periodically throughout 2025 and 2026. These activities involve various study programs within FDIKOM, expert speakers, and are open to students, academics, and the general public.

Results and Benefits

Based on the data and documentation evidence, this program has successfully realized various public educational agendas, vocational training, community outreach, and open digital access channels. These activities provide broad positive impacts, namely enhancing the critical insights of the academic community, strengthening national and international academic collaboration networks, and delivering concrete institutional contributions toward improving literacy and the quality of education for the wider community.
